Wisconsin Cattle Market
Is Greatest Distributing Center

ESTABLISHED 10 MONTHS AGO

The Wisconsin Dairy Cattle Market at Trevor is the world's greatest commission market for dairy cattle. The statement comes from no less an authority than L. L. Brown, of the L. F. Brown & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, one of the largest buyers of live stock in the world. Mr. Brown has visited the Trevor market on many occasions and has purchased many carloads of stock at the local commission market. Mr. Brown has traveled throughout the United States and has visited every commission market of importance in the country.

"Trevor is the greatest dairy cattle market in existence," he said, after having seen them all.

Started 8 Months Ago

The start of commission market which was destined to become the world's largest in so short a time, was made last February 7, when Col. Fred Reppert, famous auctioneer sold 150 head of horses to eastern buyers. In April the company started selling dairy cattle, and success marked the enterprise from the date of the first sale. The present astounding growth of the cattle market has been accomplished in eight months time.

Actual figures on the company's business during the eight months are interesting; 4,252 dairy cows were sold for 69 different consignors; buy-

Plans Progressing For American Legion New Year's Party

Skating Rink for Village
Youngsters Now Under Consideration

The annual American Legion New Year's party will be held as usual this year, it was decided at the regular meeting of the Antioch Post last Thursday evening. The regular order of business was concluded and other committee reports given. An entertainment committee was appointed to prepare in as short time as possible the details of handling the party.

The committee, on an ice skating rink for the "kids" in the village, reported some progress, although the property for this amusement has not yet been definitely located.

The Christmas party for the children was left in charge of Commander Walence and Past Commander Horan, who will work with the Woman's club in making arrangements.

District Commander Charles Kap-schul of Deerfield, guest of the Legion, explained the banquet to be held on December 3d at Highland Park in honor of Brig. Gen. McCloskey, the new Commander in charge of the military affairs at Fort Sheridan.

Service officer Nelson of the 2nd district gave a short talk on service in the Legion. Past Commander Meyer of Deerfield was also introduced.

Twelve members of the Antioch Post attended the monthly meeting of the eighth district at Grayslake Friday evening.

NEW SAFETY POSTER DEPICTS CAUTION

The fact that children who stop, look and listen before crossing streets will enjoy a merry Christmas is the lesson portrayed in the two-color December safety poster just issued by the accident prevention department of the Chicago Motor club to more than 40,000 schoolrooms in this section of the midwest.

The picture graphically illustrates the reward that comes from care and caution. The posters are a part of the motor club's school safety activities, which also include the fostering of the school boys' safety patrols and safety talks before groups of pupils.

New Children's Crusade Led by 1,100 Scientists

At Call of President Hoover, Women Pioneers Rally to Cause of Childhood

Washington, D. C.—More than 700 years ago a children's crusade brought death to nearly 90,000 children.

The new children's crusade, led by the President of the United States and 1,100 scientific idealists, will bring more abundant life to hundreds of thousands of children when the plans for the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection come to fruition.

Making surveys of child problems under the direction of the President and his aides, Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, chairman of the Conference, and Dr. H. E. Barnard, director, are many pioneers in work for children. A number are women. One, Miss Julia Lathrop was the first chief of the United States Children's Bureau after its formation. She is a member of the Planning Committee of the Conference to be held November 19-22 here, and also of the Education and Training section.

A memorandum prepared by Grace Abbott, another pioneer, for the League of Nations in 1923 led to an investigation of the traffic in women and children in the western world. Since 1921 she has been head of the Children's Bureau. She is a member of the Conference Planning Committee and of the section on Public Health Service and Administration.

Miss Martha Van Rensselaer's name appears upon all the lists of America's greatest women. She is Director of the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell, and a pioneer in work for farm women and children. She is associate director of the Conference and member of the Training and Education section.

Lillian D. Wald, founder of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City, and originator of the district nursing idea, is working with the Conference section on Education and Training.

ANTIOCH BOY GIVEN HIGHEST DEGREE AT KANSAS CITY ROYAL

Homer Edwards One of 49
to Get U. S. Future
Farmer Degree

Homer Edwards, 1930 graduate of the Antioch H. S., was among the 49 boys in the United States to receive the American Farmer degree, the highest degree possible in the Future Farmer Organization, at the National Convention of the Future Farmers of America held at Kansas City last week in connection with the Kansas City Royal Livestock Exposition.

It is not an easy job to become an "American Farmer," as each one of the 49 to receive the degree was in competition with hundreds of other aspirants in his own state.

Edwards was chosen Illinois State Farmer over a year ago and held the presidency of the State Association of Future Farmers of Illinois for a year. Last summer at the State Convention, he, with three other boys from Illinois, was recommended to attend the National Convention where he was awarded the highest degree that the Future Farmers of America can confer.

In order to receive this degree, Edwards first had to hold the State Farmer Degree; earn and deposit or invest at least $500.00; demonstrate his ability to work with others by having to participate in some agricultural co-operative enterprise; and definitely deciding to follow agriculture as his life work.

In commenting on Homer Edwards' work, the Kansas City Star says: "Owns 375 poultry. In four years projected work in poultry has earned $900.00. Has invested a saving of $1,400.00. Active in school and farm organizations activities."

Homer Edwards is now a student in the College of Agriculture at the University of Illinois.

Work on Bridge at Lake Villa To Start Next Spring

Agreement Between State
Highway Dept. and Soo
Line Reached

Construction work on an overhead bridge at Lake Villa will be started next spring, according to information received this week from authorities.

The agreement between the State Highway department and the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railroad, under which the State highway department will furnish all labor and materials and build the bridge, and the railroad will pay $30,000 toward the cost of construction and alter telegraph and signal lines, has been approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The proposed overhead crossing will consist of nine spans with a minimum vertical clearance of twenty-two feet eight inches above the rails, and a side clearance of eight feet six inches from the center of bridge to be twenty-four feet wide, each track. The roadway on the approaches will be eighteen feet in width.

This Soo Line crossing has been one of the most dangerous in Lake county for a number of years, numerous serious accidents having occurred there. For many years the half-mile unimproved section of road there has been a problem during the winter and early spring months, and at times the gap has been in an almost impassable condition.

Right-of-way difficulties have all been cleared, it is said, and it is extremely urgent that the bridge and approaches get under way as soon as possible.

Among those in attendance at the meeting of stockholders in the Chain O' Lakes Laundry & Dry Cleaning company, held at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago Monday night, were H. P. Lowry, S. Boyer Nelson, Robert C. Abt and E. A. Grutzmacher, general manager of the laundry.

H. S. SQUAD AND ALUMNI WILL PLAY CHARITY GAME SAT.

Antioch Team Drops Two
Non-Conference Games
This Season

The Antioch High school basketball squad will take up the cause of the poor and needy at Thanksgiving tide on Saturday evening, November 29, when they battle the H. S. Alumni.

The proceeds will be used for the benefit of needy persons in Antioch and vicinity. Any information regarding the identity and dwellings of such persons will be greatly appreciated by the members of the H. S. faculty.

As this game is during the Thanksgiving vacation, all the old basketball stars will be home to attempt to show the present team the superiority of former teams. Among those from college who will return to play are Sheehan, Cronin, and Mastine; Wertz, Wilson, Folbrink and Murrie, of Antioch, former regulars, will add to the Alumni squad.

It is expected that a large crowd will attend the game, in the interests of charity, and to see former stars again in action as well as to get a look at this year's cage squad. Pep will be added to the cheering section by the H. S. jazz band, which will play between halves.

The opening games of the season proved disastrous to Antioch team, but as these are not conference games, Antioch still has a paper rating of no conference losses. The first game played at Allendale was lost by a score of 26-11. The line-up was composed of all first team men, Fuchs and King playing forward position; Brogan, center; Turk, running guard; and Munsell, standing guard.

In the game with Dundee Wednesday, at Dundee, both teams piled up the baskets, but Dundee came out the winner by a score of 37-28. The only change in the line-up was O'Haver in place of Fuchs as forward.

Antioch News Employees Buy No. Chicago Tribune

John E. Moore, foreman in the office of the Antioch News for the last three and a half years, and Miss Goldie Davis, Linotype operator, employed here for many years, Saturday became the owners of the North Chicago Tribune, which they bought from Wm. H. Banninger and Hilde-gard H. Banninger, who have owned and operated the North Chicago plant for the last two years.

The North Chicago plant was established some years ago by Attorney Joe Jadrich who launched the weekly publication known as the Journal. Later a plant of equipment was purchased and the printing was done locally. About three years ago, Theo. Kunda purchased the publication, but relinquished the property after a few months of operation. Mr. and Mrs. Banninger bought the plant about two years ago and changed the name of the publication to the "North Chicago Tribune," which they have operated quite successfully, it is said.

Mr. Moore and Miss Davis are entering into the venture with a backing of several years experience in the printing business behind them. Both are hard-working, capable and ambitious young people, and success should attend their efforts. The North Shore has long been a fertile field for ambitious printers, and if given any kind of a "break," the new proprietors of the North Chicago Tribune should prosper.

Dudley Kennedy and Ralph Thompson motored to Spring Valley, Ill., in Kennedy's new Ford roadster. Thompson played football with the Spring Valley team.

Distinguished Rating for General Merit Is Again Awarded the News

Recognized again as a community newspaper of unusual merit, The Antioch News received a "distinguished rating" at the 65th annual meeting of the Illinois Press Association and the Journalistic Conference held at the University of Illinois Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. The day and Saturday of last week, The News was in competition with newspapers throughout the state, and was first in the list of four newspapers published in towns the size of Antioch, which received "distinguished rating. The other three publications receiving this rating were The Cobden Review, Metamora Herald and the Stronghurst Graphic.

Two years ago the News received such recognition in a national newspaper contest, conducted by the National Editorial association.

The News' staff and force feel proud of the achievement, and are resolved to maintain the highest standard of excellence consistent with the support and patronage received.

Farm Scholarships Awarded to Local High School Lads

Two graduates of the Department of Vocational Agriculture at the Antioch high school, Harold Kennedy and Homer Edwards, were awarded the scholarships through the office of the Secretary of the Illinois Farmers' Institute, it was announced this week. Annually one worthy boy from each county of the state is chosen to receive such an award. This year two boys were recommended and as some counties in Illinois do not take advantage of such scholarships it was possible for both the Antioch boys to receive them.

Homer Edwards and Harold Kennedy were selected owing to their scholastic ability as students at the local school. They are now attending the College of Agriculture at the University of Illinois where their four year scholarships apply.

MANY NOTABLES TO ATTEND ROAD CELEBRATION MON.

Gov. Emmerson to Dedicate
Route No. 173 at Harvard

The plans for "Saunders' Day" at Harvard, Ill., Monday, Dec. 8th, are progressing nicely. Arrangements have been made with the Harvard chapter of the Daughters of Isabella to serve the banquet. A very sumptuous menu is being planned and will be announced later. The banquet is to take place at 6:30 p. m., at the Harvard Community High school.

The various towns along the road are now building beautiful floats, and a very attractive parade is in the making. It is planned to have the parade end in Harvard at about 3:30 p. m. Those, who will be unable to see it in any other town, will be able to view it at that time.

Among the dignitaries other than Governor L. L. Emmerson, Mr. H. H. Cleveland, and Mr. F. D. Sheets, expected, are the following: Secretary of State Stratton, Jack Post, State Commander of the American Legion, Charles M. Hayes, President of the Chicago Motor Club, Congressman John T. Buckbee, Lieutenant Governor Fred Sterling, and many others of high official rank. Harvard is to be the host to perhaps the largest delegation of notables in many a day.

The one regrettable fact is that Harvard will be unable to seat all the people at the banquet that would like to be there. Their advice is for you to secure your tickets at once in order to save disappointment. Tickets can be purchased in Antioch at King's drug store or the Walence Clothing store.

Local Man Given Post in 40 and 8

Paul Chase was elected one of the Chemists of the American Legion for the ensuing year at a meeting of the Lake County Vulture 40 and 8 at the annual election of officers held Monday night at Voyageur Tony Boy's cafe on Sheridan road.

The new Chef de Gare is Howard Garnant, who succeeds Mancel Talcott. The installation will probably be held the latter part of December.

P. T. A. TO BE ENTERTAINED BY GLEE CLUBS MONDAY

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. of the Antioch Grade school will be held Monday evening, Dec. 1st, at which time the Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs will entertain with musical numbers.

MOOSE LODGE INITIATION TO BE HELD SUNDAY

State Supreme Officers to Speak; Parade to be Feature

In the presence of many supreme officers and representatives of various lodges in Illinois, the Antioch lodge of L. O. O. M. will be instituted Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Danish hall.

Earl C. Hassey, deputy Supreme Dictator of the state of Illinois, will speak on "The Institution of the Lodge." Past Supreme Dictator, Judge J. Willis Pearson, will also speak.

The work of initiating the pledged members will be handled by the Milwaukee degree team.

As a special feature of the initiation, a parade is to be conducted from the Moose lodge rooms in the Naber building to the Danish hall, where initiation will be held.

The work of organizing the Moose Lodge here received considerable impetus Tuesday evening, when a card party and entertainment was held at the Danish hall. The proceeds will be used for the furnishings of the L. O. O. M. Lodge in Antioch.

Many were present to enjoy the music by the "Man in the Moon", one of the chief instigators of a Moose Lodge here, Tom Burnette, and Henry Reinke.

DRIVER'S LICENSE LAW IS PROPOSED AT SAFETY CONFERENCE

Cermak Reports on Need of Eliminating Danger
Spots

The drafting of a driver's license law and proposed amendments to the three existing Illinois traffic laws for presentation to the general assembly which convenes in January was discussed at the meeting called by the Illinois State conference on Street and Highway Safety at Springfield on Monday and Tuesday.

The new bill will probably be known as the Uniform Motor Vehicle and Chauffeurs' License Act and will conform, insofar as the constitution of the state of Illinois will permit, with the act drawn in the model code formulated by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. This code is now in effect in twelve states and the District of Columbia.

"Examining new drivers would be an essential feature of the law," said Dr. Robertson.

"In states where the uniform code is now in effect from 3 per cent. to 5 per cent of the new drivers examined each year are finally refused licenses. In Illinois this would mean that 7,000 to 12,000 incompetent drivers would be kept off the highway each year. It will mean a reduction in automobile fatalities of more than 500 a year and innumerable accidents."

1,685 Auto Deaths Last Year
Emmerson declared the number of Illinoisans killed in the World War was 2,988.

Last year, he said, our death toll "attributed to transportation" reached 2,627 and of this 1,685 deaths were charged to automobile accidents.

Will Improve Grade Crossings
The conference was also called for the purpose of devising plans to eliminate danger spots on state highways.

Anton J. Cermak, president of the County Board of Cook (Chicago) declared most auto fatalities in his community in 1928 were caused by motorists being trapped at railroad or interurban railroad crossings.

He said that in an effort to reduce these accidents a safety commission was appointed to study the problems and make recommendations.

"The result of this study was a determination to build railroad grade separation, street separations at grade and traffic circles at strategic points, which will relieve congestion, permit of traffic movement in direct lanes and minimize accidents," he said.

Secretary of State, one of the principal supporters of the proposed measure, also addressed the conference members Monday night.

HOW TO PREVENT STATE DEVELOPMENT

The most successful way to keep capital out of a state is for its legislators or voters to pass "experimental" or "class" tax laws. Such laws work on the principle that one type of property can be "relieved" of its tax burden by shifting it to another type. Tax shifting and new methods of taxation are merely used to obscure the sad truth that there is but one way to achieve real tax reduction—to spend less money.

PLANNING AHEAD FOR ROADS

According to the Sixth International Road conference recently held in Washington, D. C., all countries face the problem of providing secondary and local roads suited to the needs of the farmer and modern motor traffic.

To do this, the Conference points out that it is necessary to create highway programs years in advance. Funds must be carefully budgeted. Adjustments to meet changing conditions or improved methods may be made as the projects develop.

In this country few states have given sufficient attention to their farm-to-market or rural road problems. Within the last few years, however, the agricultural depression has brought vividly to the front the fact that farm progress in the future will depend largely on good roads. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has pointed out that living standards are higher where roads are good, than elsewhere. In short, fast and efficient, year-round transportation is as vital to the farm as to industry.

By the use of inexpensive, waterproof surfaces, it is possible to build serviceable, year-round roads at low cost.

As civilization advances, communication of all kinds becomes of increasing value. Good roads produce benefits—social and economic—that cannot be adequately expressed in terms of money. They are the ground work on which to build a greater and more prosperous nation.

Mrs. Daisy Riney entertained her daughter and children of Chicago a few days last week.

Mrs. Flora Westlake and son, of Camp Lake, Wis., were guests of the C. B. Hamlin family Saturday evening.

Mrs. Will Pester entertained a few friends at a card party at her home last Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Mina Gilbert and Miss Margaret Gilbert, Waukegan, are guests of the Culver family this week.

Miss Ruth Avery visited the Holy Child high school in Waukegan where she was a student last year, on Friday. Miss Juanita Nickerson accompanied her.

ARTICLE No. 4

Here are three hands that were played the other evening at one of the New York Clubs, and each one of them caused considerable discussion and difference of opinion:

Hand No. 1

Hearts—K, 7, 5

AUCTION BIDDING:

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one no trump. If A passed, Y bid two hearts and B passed, what should Z do? This is a very close question, but the writer would prefer to try for game at no trump rather than hearts. For this reason, the writer considers two no trumps as the proper bid.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

This hand is a good illustration of the original "two bid" at Contract. With any hand containing at least four and one-half quick tricks, an original "two bid" is justified. In no other way can a player show his partner the type of hand held. Partner should bid his longest suit. If it has any top card strength, or three no trumps, if he has at least one trick. Z should, therefore, bid two no trumps; A will pass and Y will bid three hearts. B will pass and Z should now bid four hearts. The bidding at Contract will thus arrive at a different bid than at Auction.

Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y win seven of the eight tricks against any defense?

Solution: Trick one: Z should lead the king of clubs. Trick two: Z should lead the seven of spades and win the trick in Y's hand with the jack. Trick three: Y should lead the jack of hearts, on which Z should discard the queen of spades. Trick four: Y should lead the ten of spades, on which B should discard a low club and Z a low diamond. Trick five: Y should lead the six of spades and A is thus forced in the lead. B is forced to discard. He cannot discard a diamond or all of Z's diamonds are good for A must lead diamonds at the sixth trick. B is forced, therefore, to discard the queen of clubs. Z should then discard a low diamond and must win the next three tricks with the ten of clubs and two good diamonds. If A plays the eight of spades on the first round of spades so that he cannot be forced in the lead at the fifth trick, Y should make the third spade and then force B in the lead with the queen of clubs. B must then lead away from his diamond tenace and Z will win the next two tricks.

HOME BUREAU CO. MEET AT HICKORY STIRS NEW INTEREST

Plans to organize a Home Bureau for Lake County were further discussed at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Bert Edwards of Hickory, Nov. 19, when Miss Lulu Black of the Illinois University Extension Staff explained Home Bureau work.

A movement has been started to form a county organization. A county committee, consisting of Mrs. Earl Kane, Mrs. E. E. Elsbury, Mrs. C. W. Wray, Mrs. L. V. Lusk and Mrs. E. W. King, is conducting a series of informational meetings throughout the county.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement.

For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty of line and color, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its smart new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper and unusually efficient. Due to the increased wheelbase, the lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional sleekness and grace. And the new Fisher bodies combine with this more attractive exterior appearance, a new degree of interior luxury.

The upholstery is of fine quality mohair or broadcloth, carefully tailored and fitted. The number of individual springs in the rear seat cushions has been increased by 25%. The windshield and windows have been redesigned to provide wider vision. And all interior fittings have been made more pleasing to the eye.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism of the worm and sector type; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better and more satisfactory to the owner.

Obviously, these many improvements are responsible for a higher standard of quality than before. And they become doubly significant when you consider that they are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—the comfort of four long semi-elliptic springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers—the safety of a gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

» AT NEW LOW PRICES «

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul and Body" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 23.

The Golden Text was, "The light of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light" (Matthew 6:22).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's" (1 Cor. 6:19, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Do you say the time has not yet come in which to recognize Soul as substantial and able to control the body? Remember Jesus, who nearly nineteen centuries ago demonstrated the power of Spirit and said, 'He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also'" (p. 92).

TREVOR IS WORLD'S LARGEST MARKET FOR DAIRY CATTLE

ers from seven states bought them; 58 buyers purchased 2552 cattle, and 170 buyers bought 1,700 head.

Horse Market a Winner In addition to the cattle sales, the company in 10 months of operation has sold 2,565 horses. There were 57 carload consignors, and 64 who consigned less than car lots. 2,565 head were bought by 281 buyers from six different states. 143 buyers were dealer-buyers who purchased from one truck load to several cars each. Less than 7 1/2 per cent were bought by any one dealer, and one-half of the purchasers were men who bought for their own use and not for speculation.

The figures have established two facts: There is no commission market in existence that has as large a number of buyers at every sale in proportion to the number of horses offered as the Wisconsin Horse Market, and there is no commission horse market in the world that sells as large a proportion of horses to users.

Location, Personnel, Factors Many months were spent in compiling figures on live stock market conditions, and a great amount of research work was done before selecting a location for the market. Likewise the same care was used in selecting the officers and personnel of the staff of the company. Heading the organization as president and general manager is Ed. S. DeLancey, formerly of Minneapolis and recognized as one of the country's leading live stock operators. Ralph Kennedy is vice-president and treasurer; L. H. Mickie is also vice-president and chairman of the board of directors; Daisy Mickie, secretary; M. Riggs, bookkeeper; Harold Mickie, superintendent of yards and in charge of shipping; L. W. Mitchell, manager of dairy cattle department; Henry Christopherson, manager of horse department; Chas. Leonard, auctioneer.

Company Plans Expansion Once each month for the next year the company will hold a cattle auction at Fond du Lac. The first of the sales was held last Saturday when 144 head were disposed of for a total of $9,000. The owners of the big stock pavilion in that city were so well pleased with the way the sale was handled that they immediately negotiated for a contract for the year. Arthur Descheneaux, of Rochester, New Hampshire, was one of the big buyers who expressed himself as being well pleased with his purchases.

Another distributing point is Chippewa Falls, where the company is holding a sale Saturday of this week. For this sale 125 cows have been consigned.

Meanwhile each week the big auctions go on as usual at Trevor with cows being auctioned every Tuesday, and the horse auctions every Friday from Jan. 1 to Nov. 1.

"THANKSGIVING"

By Philip T. Bohl

The history of the modern Thanksgiving day in America runs back to the seventeenth century when the first Thanksgiving was proclaimed in the Plymouth Colony. It was after the first dreadful winter in the Plymouth Colony during which almost half of the Company of pilgrims died. With the passing of this dreadful winter renewed hope had grown up for the coming summer. With the corn crop gathered, Governor Bradford decreed a day of Thanksgiving. Great were the preparations. The few women in the colony spent days before in boiling, baking and roasting. As guests there were more than four score friendly Indians, who brought, as their share of the feast, wild turkeys and venison from the woods. The tables were set out of doors, and the company sat about them as one big family. The first Thanksgiving, however, was not merely a feast: there were prayers and sermons and songs of praise; and three days had gone by before the Indians returned to their forest and the colonists to their tasks.

From Plymouth the custom spread to the other colonies, until in time the governor of each issued such a proclamation annually. Following the Revolutionary War the various states also adopted the custom. Not until 1863, during the presidency of Abraham Lincoln has the last Thursday of November been universally adopted for the Annual Thanksgiving day. Since then the President annually makes a formal announcement, and the governors of the various states issue proclamations calling on the people to give thanks. Again the time has arrived when we as a nation turn aside for a day and offer our tribute of thanks for our numerous blessings received.

It is without doubt, true that there never was a time in the history of the world when we had so much for which to be grateful as we do now. Each passing year increases the number of accumulated blessings. Each passing generation leaves something for which the world owes a debt of thanks.

One of the writers of the Psalms has said, "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord." Without doubt Governor Bradley, who was the first to proclaim a day set aside for the giving of thanks, received this idea from the Bible, and perhaps from this very verse just quoted. He perhaps realized that thanks unexpressed were of no value. Our appreciation is not deep if it does not find expression in some form or other. So if we really feel thankful, to be of value, it must be expressed. This holds true not only in our relation with God, but with our fellow men as well. One of the greatest sources of our encouragement comes from knowing that what we do is appreciated. The occasion for the darkest hours of discouragement is most frequently accompanied with the feeling that "nobody cares." This feeling is, of course, not true, for there are always some who do care and who do appreciate our efforts. The difficulty lies perhaps in the fact that the appreciation has just not been expressed; consequently we were led to believe that nobody cared.

What a transformation would take place in many homes if appreciation of one another would find expression in some way. In this case also, gratitude unexpressed is of no help or value. The loads would be much lighter and there would be more sunshine in the average home if we were more thoughtful in regard to the appreciation one of another.

Being thankful, as someone has said, is self-rewarding. The reward for thankfulness is happiness. The act of giving thanks enriches the thankful soul. The thankful soul is the happy soul. Happiness has long been the quest of human beings. The thankful individual is easy to please and agreeable, while the unthankful is usually gloomy and peevish. Nothing pleases the ungrateful man, and he is always disagreeable. James Whitcomb Riley put it well in the following verse:

"As it's given me to perceive,
I most certainly believe
When a man's just glad plum through,
God's pleased with him the same as you."

The president of the United States renders his fellowmen no greater service than when once a year he issues his Thanksgiving proclamation, calling upon Americans to give thanks. He renders a distinct service in awakening in us a spirit of gratitude.

What housewife looks forward to a winter of constant, tedious cleaning? Not one! A woman naturally wishes her home to appear spick and span, always... but regular cleaning and extra cleaning are vastly different duties.

Use of a fuel that creates no dust, soot or smoke will eliminate all the additional cold weather cleaning necessary if a grimy fuel is burned in your heating plant. WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE is clean... it will not produce elements that soil furniture, woodwork, drapes, walls. All impurities are removed during its manufacture... you receive only the clean, pure elements that burn without causing clouds of soot and smoke.

Extra winter housework is unknown in the home heated with WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE.

Besides its cleanliness, WAUKEGAN KOPPERS COKE responds readily to control. This means greater ease in having at all times the temperature you wish. ING SELF BY COLOROrange Witching to Native
Californian; Blue to

Whether you live in Antioch, Lake Villa, Trevor, New York or California may affect your clothing to a certain extent—there is not much doubt that a winter resident of Antioch would be paler than a permanent dweller of Arizona. Taking all things into consideration, your individual type, occupation and environment, have you made out a list for yourself of the colors most becoming to you? At various intervals during the past two months, specific articles have been written regarding colors suitable to the various types.

Facts About the Use of Color in Dress

The following facts may be a general guide in the choice of color.

1. White is becoming to most people because it does not absorb color. It makes the figure look large.
2. Black absorbs color, thus making the wearer look paler than do other colors, and decreases apparent size.
3. Grayed colors render boundaries indistinct and reduce the apparent size. For large people all dark, dull colors are good, especially grayed blue, blue-purple, purple and blue-green.
4. Color should never be so bright and dominant as to eclipse the personality of the wearer. It should be a background, a setting for the face and figure.
5. People with delicate, pale coloring look best in light or grayed colors. They should not wear unrelieved neutrals; they need small masses of bright but mellow color for accent.
6. Color intensifies itself by repetition. The color in hair, eyes, and skin may be brought out by repeat-

Berets are very smart this winter—and have been all fall, too. The greatest reason for their popularity probably is due to the fact that they are found in such a great variety of designs and at reasonable prices. Also they fit the head closely, and leave the face unshaded, as do the more expensive hats. They can be worn for most occasions, too. This one is one of the simplest styles, a lightweight angora wool, with no adornment save the little "rabbit's tail" on the top. Although these are made in nearly every imaginable color, white is the favorite, as it is suitable to any costume which may be worn, and lightens the complexion. Berets do not confine themselves to the younger groups—they also have the endorsement of older women.

ing in the clothes. Gray eyes may be made to look green, blue, or purple by wearing these colors near the face. A blue facing in a hat will deepen the color in blue eyes. Color in the cheeks and lips may be intensified by the right pink. This potency in color should be kept in mind lest attention be drawn to parts that should not be emphasized. For instance, deeply colored, prominent lips would be made noticeable by the wearing of a matching bow under the chin.

7. If two colors having a common hue are placed side by side, the common hue is neutralized. Deep cream, yellow, and yellow-pink are becoming to sallow skin because they neutralize the yellow in it. Red-purple and purple are becoming to the florid

Big Slices of Nut

Satisfy Craving

Around Thanksgiving and Christmas time, doesn't everyone experience a hankering for something besides meat and potatoes to satisfy their hunger? Although many of them could not say exactly what it is they crave, they unconsciously turn to darker breads. A nut and fruit bread is especially delicious and healthful.

TOPPY'S TRAVELS

Synopsis: Topsy leaves his home to follow his canary, Linny, who flies away. After many adventures, he is captured by the Pillows, enemies of his Cloud-Queen, whom he tried to save. However, his sword is hidden from the enemy. His friend, Mr. Frog, manages to lock Topsy's guard in his cell with him. Continue—

Topsy woke several times during the night, feeling hungrier and hungrier every time, but he determinedly resumed his slumbers each time. When morning came, he ached in every bone. At least his guard didn't have to bear the pressure of chains.

He noted the guard watching him, so he inquired in a bright voice, "Did you sleep well, last night?"

"Sleep well!" the guard growled. "Don't be funny."

"Oh, oh, oh!" groaned Topsy, "don't you wish we had something to eat."

The guard was too angry to answer, but Topsy kept on talking anyway.

"Do you like birds?" he asked the guard.

"What would I like birds for?" the guard answered at last, deciding that talking would take his mind off his own troubles and hunger.

"I don't know why you would,"

Topsy answered. "I just asked if you did."

"No, I think they are hateful."

"Even if you don't like them, you can not help seeing them, can you?"

"Oh, I see them occasionally, but I never pay any attention to them."

"But did you ever see a yellow canary?" Topsy persisted.

"How do I know?" the guard answered crossly.

"You remind me of Mr. Frog only you're not so nice," Topsy told him.

"I lost a canary once, and I ran away to find him. If I could find him, I might go home. If I could find the way."

"Are you blind or have you lost your memory?" asked the guard.

"Why couldn't you find the way?"

"I don't know in which direction to start," Topsy explained, puzzled.

The guard regarded Topsy with curiosity. "You're funny," he said at last.

"Could you find your way home?" Topsy queried doubtfully.

"Why, of course. All you have to do is think of everything that has happened since you left home, and multiply that by everything that happened when you were home, and you will know the way."

"I don't understand that," Topsy said. He thought that the Pillows must thought that the Pillows must either have more brains than he had thought or else were more stupid.

"The answer will be the distance home. If the number is 92345, you will start north, because 1, 5, or 9 means north. Two or six means east, just as three or seven means south and four or eight means west."

"They what do you do?" asked Topsy.

"Go past nine corners, and then go east past two corners, then west past eight corners—"

"But what's the use of going east past two, and then turn around and go west past eight?" Topsy interrupted.

"After going north past nine, why don't you just go west past six corners?"

The guard scratched his head slowly. "That's something I never could figure out," he said in a puzzled tone.

He looked at Topsy with admiration. "You must be as good as our teachers. They're always telling us something like that, but most of us never remember."

"Then I suppose I'll go west past four more corners, and then north past five, and then I'll be home!" Topsy went on.

"No, you won't," the guard answered, "because that is not your number."

"First you must think of everything that's happened to you on this journey, and multiply it by everything that happened at home."

"But I might forget something," Topsy objected, "and then I would be more lost than ever."

"No, you'll imagine enough things that have not happened to balance what you forget."

Topsy thought this was queer, but decided to remember it, anyway.

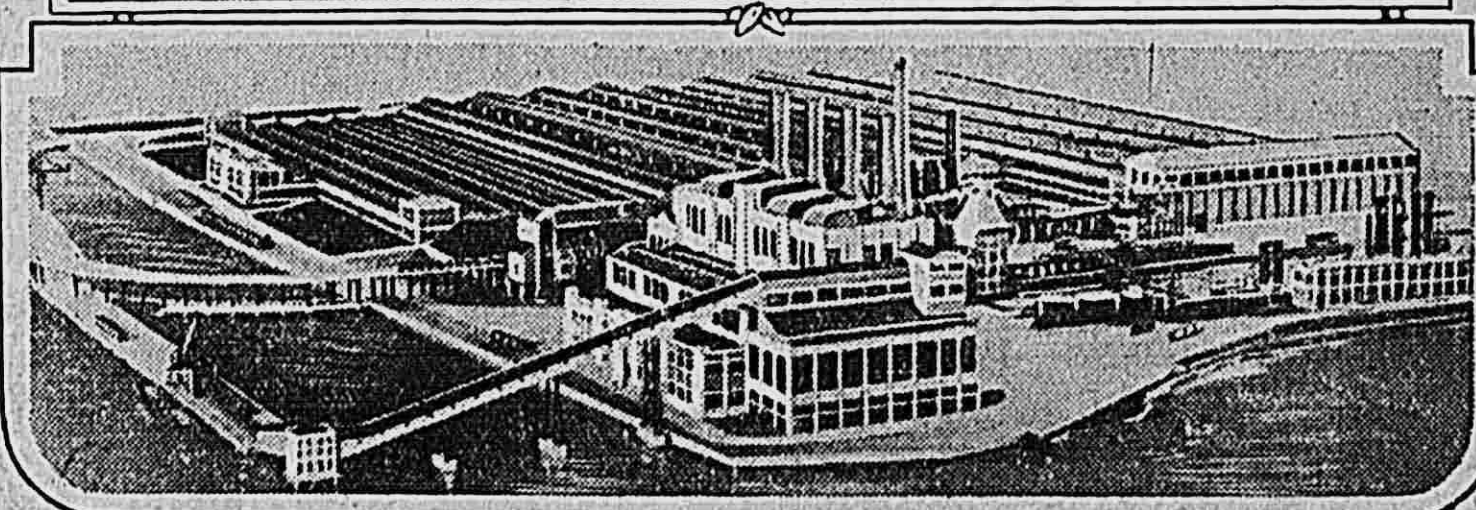

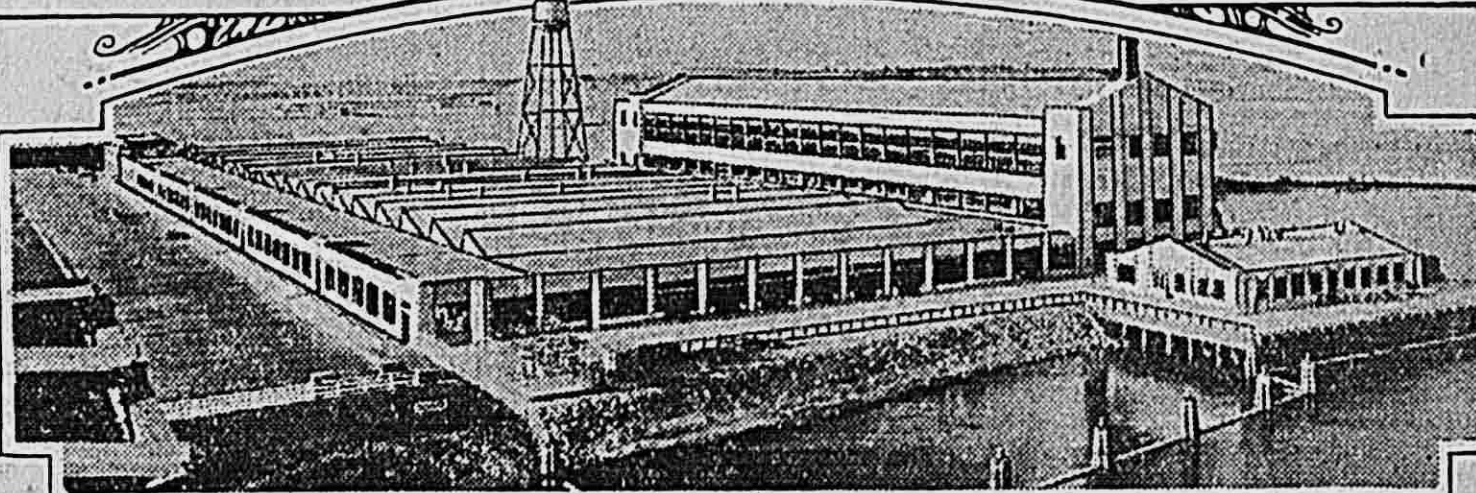

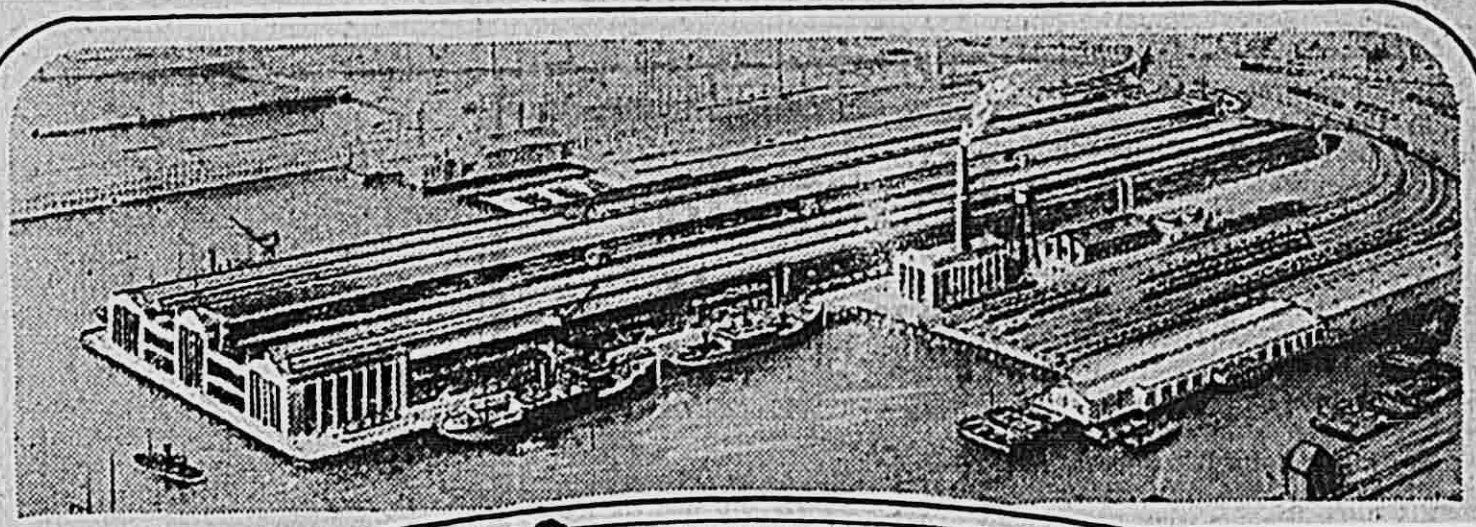

"That you for telling me," he said gratefully.

Ford Shows Faith in Future by World Wide Construction Program

Top—The Ford plant at Edgewater, N. J., opposite New York City. Center—The new plant at Long Beach, Cal. Bottom—A model of the plant being built at Dagenham, England.

THE Ford Motor Company's faith in the future of business, and especially in the future of the automobile, is evidenced by the fact that it is spending more than $60,000,000 for new plants and improvements in the United States and in foreign branches and associated companies.

The company has nine new plants under way throughout the world, while plans are being formulated for several others not yet announced. Wherever possible the new plants are being erected on sites accessible to both rail and water transportation so that, with each form of transportation supplementing the other, substantial savings will be effected.

Five of the new plants are in the United States, as follows:

Long Beach, California—This plant, recently completed to serve Southern California, has a capacity of 400 cars a day. Operating at capacity it employs 2,600 men.

Edgewater, New Jersey—The Edgewater plant, one of the company's largest assembly branches, has just been completed to serve New York City and surrounding territory. It has a capacity of 600 cars a day and employs 6,000 men.

Richmond, California—Work was started recently on a plant at Richmond, to be completed next year. It will have a capacity of 400 cars a day and will employ 2,400 men. It will supply cars to the San Francisco area.

Buffalo, New York—This plant will have a capacity of 400 cars a day and will employ 2,500 men.

Seattle, Washington—A site has been acquired and plans for a plant are being drawn.

A new manufacturing plant being erected at Dagenham, England, eighteen miles from London, to supplant the present works at Manchester, will be completed next year. It will be the largest automobile factory in the world outside the United States. Its capacity will be 200,000 cars a year.

An assembly and manufacturing plant is being built at Cologne, an assembly plant at Antwerp, and a service plant at Stockholm. Two branches—one at Perth, Australia, and one at Port Elizabeth, South Africa—were completed.

In addition the Ford Motor Company is spending several million dollars to increase the power capacity of the Rouge plant at Dearborn, Mich., and several million more in miscellaneous improvements.

THANKSGIVING COMES

TINGLING toes, rosy cheeks and a voracious appetite are all natural concomitants of the Thanksgiving season. There also always remains from the early youth of all properly constituted persons a thrilling sense of expectancy as to just what there will be for Thanksgiving dinner. In spite of the drought and temporary hard times, there is still plenty to eat, thank Heaven, in this country. One can count on roast turkey; and pumpkin pie is sure to make its appearance on the menu, but of what will the rest of the meal consist? It is to answer this question that we have planned the following menu for a modern Thanksgiving dinner, taking advantage of the reasonable prices of canned foods to make a tasty accompaniment with some fresh foods to the traditional turkey.

Anchovy Canapés
Celery Hearts Tiny Sweet Pickles
Chicken Consommé
Mushrooms and Olives on Puff
Paste Rounds
Roast Turkey
Canned Cranberry Sauce
Giblet Gravy
Mashed Turnips Mashed Potatoes
Tiny White Boiled Onions
Pickle Peach Salad
Pumpkin Pie Fairy Plum Pudding
Coffee
Home Made Nut Caramels
A Fancy Canapé

Of course the housewife will want to know just how to concoct all these delectable dishes, so here are the recipes, calculated to serve eight people:

Anchovy Canapés: Slice one cucumber thin, and then cut a sliced potato into thin rounds of same diameter. Marinate thoroughly in French dressing, and drain well. Place a round of cucumber on top of a round of potato, and cover with tartar sauce. Put four thin strips of pimiento lattice-wise across the top. Wrap a fillet of anchovy from a can of these around a stuffed olive and set in the center. A canned artichoke bottom could be substituted for the potato if you want to make this canapé still more dressy.

An Appetizing Entrée

Mushrooms and Olives on Puff Paste Rounds: Drain the contents of two 4-ounce cans of mushrooms, and cook gently for three minutes in two tablespoons butter. Cut twenty-four stuffed olives in halves, add and cook two minutes longer. Smooth two tablespoons flour with the liquor from the mushrooms to which enough rich milk or cream has been added to make one and one-third cups. (Evaporated milk can be used for this purpose.) Add to the mushrooms and olives, and cook till creamy, stirring all the time. Season to taste with salt, add a few drops of lemon juice and serve on rounds of puff paste.

A Delectable Salad

Pickle Peach Salad: Drain one No. 2 can of peach halves. Cream together one package of cream cheese and one package of Roquefort cheese, add two tablespoons Indian relish and two tablespoons chopped celery, and fill cavities of peaches with this mixture. Beat three-fourths cup cream, and add one-third cup mayonnaise and a few grains of salt. Put a little of this cream mixture in eight individual ice cream molds, then put in a peach with the stuffed side up. Fill the rest of the mold with the cream mixture so that the peach is entirely covered. Cover with waxed paper and the tight tin cover. Pack in ice and salt until frozen. Turn out into lettuce nests.

Special Sweets

Fairy Plum Pudding: Soak one and one-half tablespoons gelatin in three-fourths cup cold water. Melt two squares of sweet chocolate in a double boiler, add one-sixth cup sugar, and stir to a paste. Add another sixth cup of sugar and the gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Add one and one-half cups scalded evaporated milk and three tablespoons of syrup from stuffed oranges (you can get these in glass jars at your grocer's), and let the mixture stand until it begins to set. Then fold in three stiffly-beaten egg whites, one cup of chopped stuffed oranges (about one and a half oranges) and three-eighths cup of chopped vacuum packed walnuts. Turn into small molds wet with cold water and set aside to chill. Turn out and garnish with whipped cream and red and green cherries.

Pumpkin Pie: Mix two cups canned pumpkin, one and one-eighth cups sugar, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half teaspoons ginger, and one teaspoon cinnamon. Stir in the well-beaten yolks of three eggs and two cups milk. Beat the whites of three eggs stiffly and fold in. Turn into a pie-plate lined with pastry. Bake for fifteen minutes at 425°, then for thirty minutes or until set at 325°. Have enough heat at first to set crust. Done when knife comes out clean, as for a custard pie. Makes one large pie.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Renewing a childish attachment, Ernestine Brickland, of a wealthy Chicago family, is tremendously attracted by Will Todd, youthful newspaper artist, and a not particularly well-to-do carpenter. Her sister Lillian, more of the conventional type, and aware of the attitude their father would take toward his daughter's marriage to an impecunious youth, urges Ernestine to end the affair, but the latter, capable of a passionate attachment, and realizing that in Will Todd she has found her affinity, refuses.

CHAPTER II—The love-making progresses swiftly, and finally, largely because of Ernestine's urging, they make a "runaway" marriage. Brickland is infuriated with her daughter, Ernestine being of age, and after a stormy scene the girl, with her husband, leaves her parents' home. Loring Hamilton, wealthy young lawyer, long Lillian's suitor, wins her consent to be his wife.

CHAPTER III—The bride night is spent at Will's home, and next day they begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. Ernestine realizes the difference her marriage has made in her social sphere, but, secure in her love, faces the future bravely.

CHAPTER IV—John Poole, Will's best friend, successful though dissipated artist, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's bohemian resort on the fringe of the underworld. Pastano, notorious as a bootlegger and gang leader, irritates Ernestine by his criticism of Will for bringing his young wife to such a place. Apprehensive, Will takes her home, he delegates the task to a friend, Tommy Tucker, explaining that he must see Poole who has drunk too much, to his home. Ernestine is hurt and indignant. The situation is saved by the appearance of Loring and Lillian, who had heard of her whereabouts and with whom she leaves the night.

CHAPTER V—Approaching him for leaving her "unprotected" in his car, for Poole takes an attitude which awakens Ernestine to the realities of her new life. She is conscious of approaching the threshold of a participation of the event opens a small romance.

CHAPTER VI—Will's father dies suddenly. A suggestion that the funeral be held from the Brickland home, the Todd house being small, meets with refusal, to Ernestine's deep sorrow, though her father attends the obsequies. He offers Ernestine financial aid which she declines, in loyalty to Will. Pastano brings his wife on a visit of consolation, and Ernestine is touched by their friendliness. The shock of her husband's death leaves the elder Mrs. Todd a hopeless invalid. Lillian and Loring are married.

CHAPTER VII—Will's mother dies almost immediately after the birth of Ernestine's baby. The couple live in the Todd house. Loring announces his intention of "going into politics," association with Pastano, with whom he has formed a friendship. He is eager for wealth. Changes in Will's office fail to bring him advancement, and Ernestine is again looking forward to motherhood.

"I know," she said. She drew him down and kissed him. But her face was strangely sad. "Nothing can make me unhappy, Will, as long as we love each other. I get hurt because we go for weeks without seeing my family—I seem to be drifting away from them. Mamma and Lillian are always so busy, and papa is in New York. And I get proud and avoid them on my part. But as long as we have our love for each other—this oneness—it's the best thing in life—what can we lack?" He picked her up, sat down in his mother's little rocker, cradled her, sang silly songs in her ear and teased her. But after a little while he was talking about the office again, and she was resting against him, entirely inattentive, her thought on her own affairs.

CHAPTER VIII

Will and Loring

Loring succeeded in securing for Ruby Pastano the deed and title to the old LeQuinn place in the restricted colony at Langley lake. Ernestine was filled with indignation that he should do such a thing.

"Mamma won't like it at all," she told Lillian. "LeQuinn's land runs right down to ours with nothing but Stone creek between the two places. You know how it will be with the Greeks there. The house will simply be bursting with visitors all summer. They will have speed boats, and there will be children in the water from morning till night."

"But I thought you liked them," protested Lillian. "You are friends of theirs. Mrs. Pastano is so happy about it, I thought you would be delighted, and so did Loring. In fact he counted on your help in building mamma if she objected."

Ernestine shook her head. "He can do his own building. It's plain to me that Loring's ideas differ from ours. Will and Ruby Pastano are real friends, yet Will would never have thought of selling that place to Ruby. He fits into his own place, in Chicago, but he won't fit in there. The people—the Hendersons and the Mayces and the O'Tooles won't be kind to them. They'll not belong to the country club, nor be in the tournaments. I suppose it's not my place to worry about it, only I am thinking of mamma."

"Mamma won't go there after this summer, or next. Didn't you know, darling, that this stone-merger thing is going to make papa rich? You know, papa owns altogether nearly seven quarries in Indiana where some of the best limestone is cut, and then he has proxies for the Langley quarries. For the last year he and Loring have been buying options and small interests in other quarries. Now they have made a merger. The quarries are worth at their present rating five or six million dollars altogether, but the merger will be worth twenty-five million. Don't you see what it means?"

Ernestine stared at her. "Papa—worth millions?"

Lillian nodded with complacent pride. "Yes, and Loring is getting some of the stock. He is to be counsel for the merger, and he has a holding. You don't need to worry about mamma at Langley lake. I'm going down to open Lake Haven next week. Can't you come with me, instead of waiting for Will's vacation?"

"I don't like to leave Will alone in Chicago, in the heat," said Ernestine. "But I am leaving Loring. Are you well, Ernestine?"

"My feet bother me," Ernestine admitted. "I asked Doctor Grey about it, but he didn't say much. He's put me on a diet. I'll be all right."

"I think you ought to stay at Langley lake all summer."

"It would be nice," said Ernestine vaguely, feeling hurt because she had not known about papa, or the stone merger—feeling out of things, "but I want to be with Will."

In July they went to Langley lake, where Lillian was established and where somehow she appropriated the role of hostess, although it was not her house any more than it was Ernestine's. Will refused to worry about the Pastanos living on the point, and Ernestine saw that he lacked her own snobbish prejudices about the lake colony. He took Peter and went to visit the Greeks the first morning he was there, and stayed all day, romping with the young Pastanos, teasing Alexandra, who adored him, and eating Madame Pastano's pickled fish.

Ernestine had asked John Poole to come down for the two Sundays they were at the lake. She had come to love the man as much as Will did, and had grown into the way of ignoring his bad habits. He was admirably sober the first Sunday he came down to them, and Will and Poole spent the day in the wood path and on the water, making ridiculous sketches in the sand, carrying Peter about with them.

But the second Sunday was a day of misfortunes. Ernestine was ill and could scarcely rise that morning, and it seemed to her that Will was impatient and unsympathetic.

Loring telephoned that he had stripped his gears and put the car in the garage. He would have to come on the train, and Ernestine realized with dismay that John Poole would be with him. Lillian brought the two from the station in her car. John Poole was already fuddled with drink and elaborately polite, and it was easily seen that Loring was in a state of nervous exasperation. His face was flushed, his brow furrowed.

"I've got to go right over to Pastano's to see a man that's coming out there today," he said to Lillian as soon as they had had Sunday dinner.

"If you are going to see Ruby, I'll go with you," said Mr. Poole. "I have a most important matter to discuss with Mr. Pastano. Most important. He has a nephew—yes, I know—as Will laughed—"he has forty-seven nephews—but this is a most particular one. This boy is to study modeling. He is to be the exception—an artist in a family of clever criminals. I'm to see Mrs. Pastano about him. I'll go with you."

He rose and took a familiar hold on Loring's arm.

"Will can take you over in the boat, after while," Loring said. "I must hurry, and Pastano can't talk to both of us at once."

"No, I want to go with you," insisted Mr. Poole.

Loring no longer made the faintest effort to conceal his disgust. "Your desire is unrequited," he said, and Will laughed and came around the table to his friend and boss and took hold of him.

"You're coming with me, you old war-horse," he said. "You're drunk. I'll wager you haven't done a lick of work all week. We'll go over to see Ruby after while. Loring doesn't want you, John, so come along with me."

John Poole turned and detained Loring who was trying to escape.

"You don't want me?"

"No," said Loring nervously. "I've had enough of you—too much. I don't ever want to see you again as long as I live."

"Come outside and fight with me, and I will beat you, and then we'll go to Pastano's—together."

Loring was furious. "I won't fight with you—your old fool—Will, for G-d's sake, take him off me. Why did you bring him down here, anyhow?"

"Don't be so hard with him," said Will, smiling wily. "He's got a little money—he might come in handy some day. You've changed your mind about friends of mine before—Pastano and Wiston, for instance."

Loring turned to Lillian who stood, silent and grave, by her table. "If this is what I am to expect here it's the last Sunday I come down."

Will flushed. "So Ernestine is intruding now?" he said slowly. "Perhaps you have already consummated your intention of cheating her out of her privileges in this house as elsewhere."

"Anybody could cheat Ernestine," exclaimed Loring. "She was cheated once and for good when she married you. She ruined her life then, and now she must endure anything because she lacks protection and is handicapped to boot."

Will took a step forward, his big hand raised, and though he still smiled his face was evil. He spoke low and rapidly, and with an indescribable effect of vituperation.

"You great big stuffed shirt—you imitation—you safe-player and bribe-taker, you! You covet! Do you think I don't know what's the matter with you?"

There was a pause which lasted indefinitely. Loring had swollen to rage, and then he had collapsed, until he stood looking at Will with a dreadful, haunted face.

It was strange, Ernestine thought afterward, that none of them felt, even then, that Loring was afraid of Will. There was some other element which gave Will tremendous advantage. Before the blaze in Will's eyes, before his cursing breathless phrases, Loring fell into a strange dejection. The two men looked at each other in the stillness that swirled around them all. Will turned at last to Ernestine.

"Go get your things, kitten, and get the baby ready," he said in a gentle voice. "We'll all go back together. I'll go to the hotel and get a taxi to take us to the depot. We can get the afternoon train. Gather your things up, again, John."

With tears running down her face, Ernestine obeyed him. Loring went off, cursing under his breath, and Mr. Poole followed him to shout unheeded threats and maledictions. Lillian helped Ernestine to get ready, both of them crying.

"It's the end," said Ernestine. "We can never see each other again now. Our lives are separated indefinitely," and Lillian was thinking, "What will mamma say?"

"I'll call you up, when I get in town. Write to me, Ernestine. Don't let them tear us apart."

"My life is with Will—yours with Loring," said Ernestine, and wept afresh, trying to stem the tears, trying not to care, but feeling the nervous, uncontrollable necessity for weeping.

In the train, going back to Chicago, she still cried now and then. "Why does Loring hate us so?" she asked at last in a low tone. "Especially me? Why does he hate me? He seems to want to wound me, to strike at me. He's done it before. But I've never harmed him. Why does he hate me, Will?"

"Hate you?" exclaimed Will, and looked at her strangely, his dark bright eyes searching her pale face for guile. "He doesn't hate you, Ernestine. But forget him—I'm glad something has happened. They're only made us unhappy, anyhow."

It was nice to be home again. Ernestine went about her little house with a feeling of comfort and joy.

Will was not due at the office until the end of the week, but on Monday, as Ernestine was finishing up a washing for the baby, he got dressed to go downtown. As she kissed him good-by and watched him go, then turned back to the routine of home, Ernestine felt a sense of well-being blot out yesterday's turmoil. She resolved not to think about it, nor to worry.

It seemed to her that Will had barely had time to go to town and come back again before he stood in the kitchen doorway, his eyes upon her with such a look in them that she gave a little cry and her hand flew to her throat.

"Will—what's happened?"

He put his hat down slowly. He hung his head, unable to speak to her, but at last he got it out.

"I've lost my job."

"Will—"

He said no more.

"Tell me—what happened?"

"Crap."

Ernestine sat down weakly in a chair by the kitchen table and gave a foolish-sounding laugh.

"Unarm, Ernie—" she exclaimed and grinned at him. "I'm glad. You would never have quit, and now you'll get a job where they'll appreciate you."

"Ernestine!" he said, and choked. "I'll make good for you—I will! You'll see—some day."

Mr. Poole had not been at the office when Will was dismissed by Mr. Wiston. It was some days before he learned the details and gave them to Ernestine. The fellows had all surrounded Will with affectionate greeting on his arrival in the office unexpectedly. They had at once planned to eat supper in a crowd. Somebody produced dice to determine immediately who would have to pay. They squatted on their heels in a close ring between the sloping desks, and Tommy Tucker cried a fierce schoolboy "jiggers" at them. Will held the dice, and he straightened up and turned about boldly rattling the cubes in his big hand, and faced Mr. Wiston.

Mr. Wiston made quick work of him, almost, it seemed to Will, or so he said, as though he were glad of the chance. Within ten minutes after his arrival, Will walked out of the Sun offices, his possessions, done up in a paper package, under his arm, while half a dozen indignant but futile youngsters mourned after him.

But John Poole would not have it. "You fire my help and you fire me," he told Wiston, and he left bag and baggage.

Nobody had thought of this. Mr. Wiston remonstrated with him, but nothing would satisfy John Poole except Will's reinstatement, and that Wiston would not concede.

So Will had added to his own anxieties a sense of responsibility about John Poole, of concern over Ernestine's break with that part of her family which was in or near Chicago.

Mr. Poole let it be known in newspaper circles that he and his assistant were available, but to his astonishment he had no offers. He was old, he had been identified with the Sun for many years. The Sun's rivals were busy developing their own artists and establishing them. It was only a year or two longer, it was said, for John Poole, and anyhow he would probably be back at the Sun within a month.

It was dull in Chicago that summer. Mamma was still in Europe, and Ernestine felt that she could not confide in Lillian about Will. There were times when she was frightened about her own health. She felt faint in the heat. She could not eat at all. She had not felt this way before Peter was born, but then she had been strong and well. She couldn't understand this—her feet were swollen until she could not wear her shoes. Mrs. Schluss and Mrs. Pryor expressed their anxiety. Only Will, engrossed in his own troubles, was unaware of her frailty. She presented to Mr. Poole and to Will a superb calm, and a factiousness that was easier for her than tragedy.

Will found some work for an advertising agency, which he brought home to do. He might have taken one of the jobs papa had offered him from time to time, but papa was in Europe and Loring in charge of his affairs.

Ernestine could not forgive Will for playing baseball in the streets with John Pryor and a half a dozen other half-grown boys, when he came back from his fruitless jaunts after work. "He doesn't care," she thought, and longed to wound him, to strike through his carelessness. She grew almost morbid—"Perhaps he'll have reason to waken—to understand that life's a job for a man."

Will took five dollars, almost the last of their cash, one morning early in August and went out, looking very clean and spruce, and with the light of adventure in his eye.

"I'll find work today, or stay out till I do," he told Ernestine and kissed her on both cheeks.

Peter clung to him ecstatically. "Peter loves Will the better," she thought, pressing any thorn at hand against her heart. After he was gone, she went to her trunk and got out the bankbook she had obtained that day two years ago, when she had come out here and found Will's father dead. Here was a secret source of supply of her own. She looked at her bank balance. It was enough to pay for herself and the new baby, if she went into a two-bed ward, as Doctor Grey had planned for her. This was her money. Will would have to manage for himself and Peter. She decided to go and get the money and have cash in the house if anything happened. But she would not let Will know she had it.

She put the small bankbook on the dining room table and went about the clean and tidy house, washing dishes, setting the rooms in order.

There was a long letter from mamma in the morning mail. Ernestine did not finish reading it, for she had to go and lie down on her bed, seized with such pain that she could scarcely forbear crying out. She felt within herself no light at all, no buoyancy, no spark of life. She was dull, leaden, submerged. She felt she ought to make some effort to resist this spiritual inertia but she was too ill. She wondered if her child would be born too soon. This thought goaded her into action. She rose and gathered from her trunk Peter's little baby garments, long since washed and mended and laid away. She made the things she might need for the baby into a bundle and put it in her dresser drawer. She would get her money. She would arrange her own affairs—with competence. When the call came, she would be ready.

But she must rest first. She made herself a pot of fresh tea, asked Mrs. Schluss to look after Peter, and at length in the early afternoon she started off on the long walk to the street car.

She rode interminably, withdrawing her spirit from the concussion of the heat waves that came up from the stone pavement into the street car. Walking in a mist she reached the bank and went inside. She opened her purse, but found among its contents no bankbook. Like a picture in a dream she could see the leather square of it on the dining room table in the little house. She had left it at home.

If she had been in normal condition she would have realized that it was quite possible for her to establish her identity at the bank. She had made many small deposits. The teller would have remembered her. But as she stood in disappointment, the world grew black before her eyes, and for a straining moment, fully conscious but blind, she stood in silent terror.

The blindness passed, and she picked up her purse and went out of the bank, turned, half instinctively, toward Mrs. Bennett's. A strange girl was at the door, a colored girl who rolled her eyes at Ernestine.

"Miss Bennett's out, ma'am. Will you wait?"

Ernestine left without a word, and went back to the boulevard. The darkness, the blindness was coming down on her again. She felt that she was going to faint. She could not hold on any longer—there was nothing with which to cling—she no longer cared.

The great bulk of the bus was moving down toward her—gigantic, menacing. She felt that it would crush her, and moved back a little on the sidewalk, her horrified eyes fixed upon the monster which seemed to swell and grow, and then, strangely, to rise from the pavement and to turn slowly and gracefully about in the air. She knew it was delirium, she knew that the bus could not act that way. But her knowledge could not pierce her fear of confusion. And then the bus lunged at her—the blindness came down again, and Ernestine, alone and very ill, fell down upon the pavement of the boulevard with a soft and plaintive moan.

Everything Lovely in Texas, Congdon Writes Friends Here

Antiocheons All Settled for Pleasant Winter in Lone Star State

San Antonio, Texas.
November 18th, 1930

Dear Friends:

We have arrived and nicely located at 300 A. Queen Aene Court, weather just wonderful.

Left Antioch eight a. m. Nov. 10, a six-day journey arriving 5:30 p. m. Nov. 15, a distance of 1541 miles over all kinds of roads, part hard and a great portion of soft mud and one detour of 124 miles between Rolla and Springfield, Mo., and 37 miles over wash-board gravel.

Left Corsicana, Texas, for Houston over rough dry mud; turned back to Corsicana to Waco, Texas, stopping over night at Dawson. We gave up trying to make Houston, as this road has many detours most of which are bad, rough stuff and very lengthy. Found country beautiful through the Ozarks, all trees in autumn foliage, highways good. Oklahoma and Texas are wonderful states. Muskogee, Oklahoma, is a lively city. We were surprised at the nice villages and towns. Habitations between are often dilapidated and I will admit that I see no inducement for them to be otherwise. Residents seem to be happy and satisfied so why worry so long as there is corn meal and a little cotton in the jar?

Through Texas the thing which interests one is the enormity of the state. Houses a mile apart. Corn and cotton are staple products.

There are no bridges crossing creeks in Texas, but fortunately the creeks are dry at this time of year. There are numerous short ninety degree turns which are dangerous and require constant watching in driving. These rough and rugged roads have a tendency to make one talk yiddish as it is next to impossible to keep your hat and teeth in proper place unless you are a Javanese juggler.

Everything went along smoothly until the 13 day of the month when I picked up a ten-penny nail one mile north of Checotah, Oklahoma, and on making repairs found 13 holes in inner tube. Not so bad for one nail.

In this lovely city of Checotah there are 150 churches, that is more than one for every saint and there are more coming through every day from north and east.

With the assistance of Mrs. Otto Klass' father and sister we found our winter quarters, a very comfortable home at reasonable rates, comprising a large living room and kitchen with automatic hot water heater, large sink, cooking utensils, dishes, also bedroom, sleeping porch, rooms nicely furnished and private garage.

Truly yours,
L. E. CONGDON.

THIEVES WHO ROBBED LAKE VILLA GARAGE ARE STILL UNKNOWN

Investigations by deputy sheriffs into the robbery at the garage and automobile agency of Rentner and Haley, Lake Villa, Nov. 19, have not yet disclosed the identity of the thieves. It is not known whether the robbers were members of a bandit gang, or local burglars.

The looters forced their way into the place early Wednesday morning by switching the door knob from the inside. A number of automobile parts, tires and oil, amounting to a loss of $150, were found missing in the morning by the owners, Elmer Rentner and Arthur Haley. Glass was strewn over the sidewalk and in the show room.
